

FOTOSEPTIEMBRE USA
SAFOTO fall festivals

Cruzando fronteras

The US-Mexico border may be a political boundary, but for the cultural soul it is only a river. Back and forth we cross tasting the flavors, merging our traditions, living one life, speaking two languages, and inventing our own version of culture.

Featured works by

Pilar Sada de Caballero, Jennifer J. Martín, and Sherwood Inkley
Sept 3-Oct 10, 2009

Celebrate the opening of the Tres Rebecas gallery/librería
at a reception honoring the photographers

Friday, September 11

5:30-8:00 pm

711 S. St. Mary's San Antonio, TX 78205 210-224-5735

Esperando

Pilar Sada de Caballero
San Pedro Garza García, NL

Pilar's passion for the spirit of México is evident in the images she captures of daily life on the streets, in the mercados, and at the festivals of Mexico. Each of her photos in the Cruzando Fronteras exhibit is rich with color, expression, and culture.

Sherwood Inkley
San Antonio, TX

One glance at Sherwood Inkley's photos tell the whole story; he loves Texas. A former history teacher, Sherwood's camera is frequently pointed at historical buildings, rodeos, community festivals, and the great Texas landscape. From Big Bend to the ranches of south Texas, the history and culture of Texas is told in his photos.

Marshland Mustang Island

Jennifer J. Martin
San Antonio, TX

Jennifer crosses the border with enthusiasm and a camera. An accomplished writer, photographer and textile artist, Jennifer's passion for bright colors is evident in all her work. Her San Miguel de Allende series illustrates the colorful streets and markets of this favorite town in México and is featured in Cruzando Fronteras.